Book List

I shudder to share this enormous “book list” – this bibliography of sorts – in its current state of disrepair. But time is our collective enemy, and if I wait until it’s “edited,” it will likely never see the light of day.

And people are waiting!

I am frequently asked, “What books do you recommend I read?” And I cobble together lists of books I’ve read or even enjoyed (!) only to lose the lists months later.

Alas, I have spent the better part of the past hour cutting and pasting my various, located lists into one document.

Yes, it is a rat’s nest, but at least “here it is.” [PLEASE forgive any errors, key omissions, or outright unattractiveness of this list.]

Maybe one day, someone will Pay it Forward by boomeranging it back to me – neatly organized and much beautified!

Hint, hint.

But until then, here it is – a messy, but quite thorough accounting of some of the books (and articles) I’ve read and skimmed and referenced and recommended since the early and mid-90s.

I hope these books serve you as they have served me but, moreover, that you enjoy them and find them both “educational and implementable.”

Read on.
